dotted the Sound off City Island just before the breaking of the storm, when it had passed, the water was strewn with overturned craft and the buildings on shore resembled a battle-torn vil-lage in No Man's Land. Many parties hurrying for safety saw people strug-gling in the water, but dared not stop for fear of capsizing their own craft. The rescue work started immediately, but darkness and the panic-stricken crowds hindered the labors of the volunteer life-savers.

The storm was as suddeness it was violent. Low hanging clouds across the Hudson River were observed, but they seemed to be far away, and danger was unforeseen,
